REQUIREMENTS

THE MAJOR
(30 credit hours)

The thirty-hour major includes the following requirements:

a. HIST 101 OR HIST 103
b. HIST 102 OR HIST 104
c. HIST 268
d. One History course before 1700, not including HIST 101 and HIST 103.
e. Three credit hours in African, Asian, Latin American, or Middle Eastern History.
f. Twelve credits at the 300 level or above.
g. One History Seminar at the 400 level or above, excluding HIST403, 464*,468*, 491, 493 and Independent Study.

*Depending on topic

Note:
All history majors must take HIST268 in their sophomore year. If the history major is declared after the sophomore year, HIST268 must be taken the following semester. In all cases, HIST268 must be taken before a 400-level seminar.

History Minor Requirements
(15 credits in history minimum)

The History minor requires a minimum of fifteen credits, which are distributed as follows:

1. Two courses from HIST101, 102, 103, 104, 205, 206.
2. Three courses at the 300 level or above, (excluding HIST491 and 493).

The minor may be structured to permit concentration in a specific period, topic or approach, and fashioned to meet the individual needs of the student.

NOTE:
Only Education students are allowed to use HIST 491 toward a minor in History.

HISTORY MAJOR WITH CONCENTRATIONS
(36 History credits minimum; 45 history credits maximum)

Concentrations provide an opportunity for History majors to pursue a more focused program of study. Those who have clear career objectives or wish to go on to graduate studies may find the concentrations particularly helpful. Concentrations are offered in the following fields: American, European, or World History. Concentration options are available for all majors.

MAJOR REQUIREMENTS FOR CONCENTRATIONS:

Within the Department

• HIST 101 OR HIST 103
• HIST 102 OR HIST 104
• HIST268 History Seminar Note: HIST268 does NOT count toward concentration.
• History Course in Asian, African, Latin American, or Middle Eastern History
• History course before 1700, not including HIST 101 and HIST 103
• Six courses in the field of concentration, four of which must be history courses at or above the 300-level. With written approval of the advisor, a student may take two of these courses outside the Department of History.
• History seminar at the 400-level or above (excluding HIST403, 464*, 468*, 491, 493 and Independent Study)

This section satisfies the multi-cultural requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences. It also satisfies the History Department’s Pre-1700 requirement.
This survey course examines the history of the world from the beginning through the 1500s. While lectures and class discussions will cover important political and economic developments, this course will place special emphasis on social and cultural history themes. By analyzing both secondary and primary sources, we will concentrate on the perspectives of many people. In addition, this class will focus on themes, such as the construction of race, religion, trade, the rise and fall of civilizations, and the importance of material culture in many areas of the world like Europe, the Americas, Asia, and Africa. We will especially concentrate on the role of women, slavery, technological advances, and the transition from an agrarian to an urban economy. Through a close analysis of primary sources and material culture, students will gain a better understanding of social, cultural, political, and economic trends in the history of the world. Students are encouraged to actively participate in class discussions and class activities.

This course is an introduction to the history, philosophies, religions, and cultures of Japan through the early twentieth century. Who dipped that briny spear? Were emperors born of gods? What was a warrior monk? Did a Japanese woman write the world's first novel? Why did gaki eat earwax? What is a samurai? Why and how did shoguns send Jesuits and other Europeans packing? Shinto or Buddhism? Was Meiji modernization really a miracle? The course will answer these and many other questions, while explaining the relevance of the past to the present.

HIST167.010: INTRODUCTION TO MODERN INDIA
Khan    Limit 40   TR 12:30-1:45
This introductory course will use lectures, classroom discussions, novels, short stories, films, political writings, and memoirs to trace the history of modern India from the sixteenth century to the present. We will approach the history of the region’s Colonization and decolonization through the theme of fault lines, being attentive to the fissures and frictions that marked the emergence of modern India. We will begin with key questions that contemplate when ‘modern India’ came into being and what makes it modern. Students will spend the first few weeks acquainting themselves with the political and geographical landscape of pre-colonial South Asia, the demise of the Mughal Empire and historical debates about the economic vibrancy of the eighteenth century. The subsequent weeks will be dedicated to understanding the establishment of colonialism, the emergence of nationalism and mass mobilization, the relation between reformism and women’s rights, peasant revolts and workers’ movements, caste / religious violence and the crystallization of the urban middle class, and decolonization and state formation.

HIST205.012: UNITED STATES HISTORY TO 1865

This course explores the political, economic, and social history of the United States from its beginnings through the Civil War.

This course will explore major developments and themes in American history, from 1865 to the present.

This is a course about the United States of today, about how we have come into our present condition. Introducing issues that have preoccupied Americans since the late nineteenth century, the course invites students to develop thoughtful opinions through the arts of oral and written argument.

An introductory survey of American history since 1865.

This course will survey the major social, cultural, and political developments in the United States from 1865 to the present.

An introductory survey of American history since 1865.

In this course we will be learning about the history and development of Hollywood and the movie industry as modern business and spectacle, vastly important in American (and world) culture today. You will see: The Stars! The Movies! The Famous Directors! Some Topics Include! The Hollywood celebrity machine and the “star system;” The classic genres, including: the monster films; the gangsters; “the fallen woman; the “blockbuster;” Critical techniques of reviewers and studio bosses; Trends in direction and design; The “studio system,” business and corporate structure; The ratings system; Gender, race and “making it” in America; Sex and violence; Communists and the movies; and more!!

This course will explore how people have related to the environment throughout history. The first part of the course will focus on the most revolutionary changes in world environmental history, from the invention of agriculture to the rise of consumer culture.
The second part of the course will look at the history of efforts to solve environmental problems -- a history that goes back hundreds of years in many places. We also will consider how a knowledge of history can help us understand the 21st century challenge of climate change.

HIST254.010: THE JEWISH HOLOCAUST, 1933-1945
Brophy   Limit 80   TR 2:00-3:15
The systematic destruction of European Jewry constitutes an immensely tragic event, a signal moment of barbarism in the history of humankind. This introductory course studies the traumatic experience of the Jewish community in depth by examining in detail the implementation and consequences of the infamous “Final Solution.” Readings, films, and other audio-visual resources will focus on a variety of topics, including the following: European Anti-Semitism; National Socialist ideology and racial laws; concentration camp and ghetto life; the Einstazgruppen; resettlement; resistance; extermination. Rome   Limit 35/5   TR 11:00-12:15
In the last 50 years, a growing number of Americans have become concerned about our environmental future. Can we build a sustainable society? This course explores the history of efforts to green the basic institutions of American life, especially the world of business.

HIST267.011: HISTORY OF THE FUTURE
Mohun   Limit 40   M 6:00-9:00
How did people in the 20th century imagine the future? What role did they think science and technology would play in future societies? How and why were they right or wrong in their predictions? This course uses weekly film showings plus lecture and discussion to explore these fascinating questions.

HIST268.011: SEMINAR: VIETNAM CONFLICTS
McLeod   Limit 15   T 3:30-6:30
History 268, Vietnam Conflicts, explores the events Americans call the "Vietnam War" and Vietnamese Revolutionaries call “War to Resist America and for National Salvation” in the larger context of decolonization and revolution in the Vietnamese-speaking lands of the former French Indochina. Through readings, discussion, music, images, film, and lecture, class members will become familiar with a common body of information and interpretations. Each student will then select, in consultation with the instructor, a particular theme or topic that will become the subject of a research paper that will be presented orally to the seminar as well as submitted in written form to the professor at the end of the course.

HIST268.025: SEMINAR: FASCISM & COMMUNISM IN EUROPE
HIST268.085: HONORS: FASCISM & COMMUNISM IN EUROPE
Cruz   Limit 12/3   W 3:35-6:35
For majors, or by permission.
This course satisfies the University of Delaware’s DLE requirement.

Fascism, communism, and to a lesser degree, anarchism, seemed to offer efficient and rapid solutions to the economic, social, and political troubles created by World War I and the Great Depression. For that reason, these ideologies captivated the imagination of many Europeans during the 1930s. However, the radical nature of their solutions took European politics to the brink of armed confrontation. This seminar will explore the developments that led up to that polarization through the study of the Spanish Civil War (1936-39) and the rise of the Nazi Party in Germany. Students will write a research paper based on a variety of primary sources available at the University library and the Internet.

HIST268.030: SEMINAR: THE CONSUMER REVOLUTION IN THE 18TH CENTURY
HIST268.080: HONORS SECTION
Matson Limit 12/3 R 3:30-6:30
For majors, or by permission.
This course satisfies the University of Delaware’s DLE requirement
This course will explore how households and private lives changed in the eighteenth century through the changing ways they dressed, prepared food, organized work in their homes, shopped in public markets, and traded with each other over long distances during this era. Students will: read and discuss assigned materials, learn how to conduct research and interpret printed documentary sources, learn how to “read” images that help explain our themes, and write a research paper.

This section satisfies one credit of the multi-cultural requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences.
This five week course explores women's historical experience through the medium of film. Students will view a variety of documentary films on women, hear from guest speakers and read materials relating to the topics covered in the films. The films cover both historical and contemporary issues, within the United States and internationally.
This course is crosslisted with WOMS291.

HIST308.010: THE UNITED STATES IN THE ANTEBELLUM PERIOD, 1825-1861
Bendler Limit 35 MWF 12:20-1:10
This section is NOT offered as 2nd writing this semester.
This course covers the history of the United States from 1825 through 1861. We will look at the emergence of political developments during the "Age of Jackson," looking at the increasingly democratic politics--for white males--that rose in these years, including the rise of the Second Party System. We will also study cultural and social changes such as the reform movements spawned in part by the Second Great Awakening, and other cultural developments such as Transcendentalism. And we will look at the rise of the belief in "Manifest Destiny" and the consequent expansion of the United States across the North American continent. And we will see the growing presence of the slavery issue, discussing the growth of the abolition movement and the emergence of slavery as the main national issue by the 1850s and the consequent breakdown of the Second Party System, and the ultimate division of the United States after the presidential election of 1860.
HIST309.010: MONEY, MARKETS, AND MISCHIEF: U.S. BUSINESS AND POLITICAL ECONOMY SINCE 1865
Russ Limit 35 TR 11:00-12:15
This section is NOT offered as 2nd writing this semester.
From the “robber barons” of the Nineteenth Century to Bill Gates and Martha Stewart, this course will examine the ways in which business and business leaders have played a central role in American life. Among topics that we will explore are the development of America’s consumer culture, American business abroad, the role of foreign business activities in the U.S., and how McDonalds, Disney, and the Mall came to be our ubiquitous national symbols. The course will consist of lectures, weekly discussion of core reading assignments, and the research and writing of a paper.

HIST310.010: POSTWAR AMERICA, 1945-1963
Johanningsmeier Limit 35 MWF 1:25-2:15
This course will examine the main political, economic, and social developments in American society from the end of World War II up to and including the assassination of President Kennedy in 1963. This period has undoubtedly been subject to some of the most intense currents of criticism, hyperbole, and celebration in the memories and writings of Americans of all persuasions. Was it (mostly) a secure, tranquil, and prosperous time that represented the triumph of the “greatest generation” of Americans, those who had lived through and triumphed over unprecedented economic crisis and world war, then built the most prosperous economy in history? Or perhaps the period was most noteworthy for conformity, quiescence, cultural stagnation, Cold War crisis, and the “comfortable concentration camps” of bogus suburban utopias? The occasionally insightful critic Norman Mailer described the 1950s as “one of the worst decades in the history of man;” others, a time of the “bland leading the bland.” In this course we will attempt to sort out some of the most outstanding paradoxes and ironies of this period, partly by examining the ideas and inspirations of numerous different personalities and their powerful political/cultural influences: Dwight D. Eisenhower and Senator Joe McCarthy; Muddy Waters and Pat Boone; Alfred Kinsey and Norman Vincent Peale; Martin Luther King and J. Edgar Hoover; Lucille Ball and Billy Graham, to name a few.

HIST314.011: THE UNITED STATES, 1914-1945
Morris-Crowther Limit 35 TR 12:30-1:45
This section is NOT offered as 2nd writing this semester.
Americans living between the years of 1914 and 1945 experienced tumultuous change. This class explores that change with particular attention to three themes: the evolution of the United States as an industrial giant to a military one, the ongoing struggle for marginalized people for their political, social and economic rights, and the increasing centralization and bureaucratization of the national government. Final grades are a composite of two (mid-term and final) exams, short quizzes and a short (3-4 pages) paper.

HIST317.010: BUYING IN: CONSUMER CAPITALISM IN THE U.S.
Suisman Limit 35 MW 3:35-4:50
This section is NOT offered as 2nd writing this semester.
Today we are awash in an ocean of consumer goods, and the language of buying and selling informs nearly all aspects of our society, from education to elections, from healthcare to the allocation of natural resources. In this course we will explore the origins and development of this contemporary phenomenon, with readings, lectures, and discussions designed to introduce students to the historical and theoretical foundations underpinning today's world. Our work will take us across a wide range of topics--from department stores and advertising agencies to television newsrooms and music recording studios--as a way to understand more abstract concepts like commodification, cultural capital, and globalization.

HIST324.080: AMERICAN CONSTITUTIONAL HISTORY
Rise Limit 5 TR 9:30-10:45
This honors course will examine the historic contests that have emerged in the United States when the values of constitutionalism, rooted in the rule of law, have clashed with the values of democracy, rooted in majority rule. We will contrast the formal expressions of constitutional principles, emanating from the U.S. Supreme Court, with the competing interpretations of presidents, legislators, civil libertarians, laborers, dissidents, religious believers, and other activists. Our discussions will emphasize three broad areas of constitutional change: federalism, judicial review, and presidential powers. This course is crosslisted with CRJU324.

HIST326.010: AFRICAN AMERICAN HISTORY SINCE THE CIVIL WAR
Gill Limit 10/5 TR 11:00-12:15
ONLY SECTION 011 is offered as 2nd writing this semester.
This section satisfies the Multi-cultural requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences. This course surveys the broad social, political, cultural, and economic developments that shaped black America from Reconstruction to the present, with special emphasis on the role of gender and class in the making of African American communities. Interdisciplinary and transnational in breadth, topics for this class include the rise of Jim Crow and segregation, urbanization, black internationalism, the black freedom movement, and the “Obama Phenomenon.” This course is crosslisted with BAMS306.

HIST/BAMS334.010: AFRICAN AMERICAN WOMEN’S HISTORY
Gill Limit 15 TR 2:00-3:15
This section satisfies the Multi-cultural requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences. Explores the diversity of African American women's lives and development of women, work, and culture from the colonial era through the late 20th century. Examines the social, political, religious and economic factors affecting change and transformation in the lives of African American women. Provides a broad introduction to the interdisciplinary field of African American and Women's Studies. This course is crosslisted with BAMS334.

HIST/BAMS335.010: AMERICAN SLAVERY
HIST/BAMS335.011: WRITING SECTION
Armstrong Dunbar Limit 5/10 MWF 12:20-1:10
ONLY section 011 satisfies the second writing requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences.
In this class we will examine the institution of slavery from 1619 through the Civil War. This course has a number of goals, one of which is to examine the “peculiar institution” over space and time within colonial and antebellum America. We will spend a great deal of time exploring the similarities and differences between slavery in the North and the South, as well as the function of slavery in the Caribbean. In addition to becoming familiar with seminal texts in African American history we will also examine key primary sources. This course is crosslisted with BAMS335.

HIST337.010: TOPICS IN AMERICAN HISTORY: AMONG THE AMERICANS
HIST337.080: HONORS SECTION
Alchon Limit 21/4 TR 2:00-3:15

BOTH sections satisfy the 2nd writing requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences.

To take the measure of contemporary American life and character is to launch upon an adventure in moral imagination. It is also to enter upon a longstanding conversation about American virtue and default, about evil done and denied, about the things worth saving, and about the circumscribed fate of Americans without money enough to matter. This then is conversation of the best sort, at once alert, discerning, and unafraid of judgment. Those students who rise to these requirements will also rise into an adult seriousness, into a sensibility better able to measure the promises of American life.

HIST337.011: TOPICS IN AMERICAN HISTORY: AMERICAN SPORTS HISTORY
Lanctot Limit 35 T 6:00-9:00

This course will trace major developments in American sports history since the Civil War. A number of topics will be discussed including the professionalization of sports and the transformation from amateur game to big business, race and the evolving position of African American athletes, the effect of mass media, the shifting role of women, the creation of athletic celebrities, and the development of free agency. Although lectures and videos will comprise a good part of class time, class discussion is also an important component of this course. Requirements will include a midterm, final, and a term paper. Note: Knowledge of current sports is not a prerequisite for this course.

HIST337.012: TOPICS IN AMERICAN HISTORY: AMERICAN ASSASSINS
Russ Limit 35 TR 3:30-4:45

From the assassination of Abraham Lincoln to the murder of John Lennon, the United States periodically has been roiled by the assassinations of leading political and social figures. Over the course of the semester, we shall examine these traumatic events and the people and circumstances surrounding them. As part of the weekly lectures and reading assignments, we also will consider the role of media and film in shaping assassinations and our understanding of them in U.S. history. There will be one mid-term exam, a paper, and a final.

HIST338.010: GREEK AND ROMAN SPORTS & RECREATION
Sidebotham Limit 40 MWF 1:25-2:15

This section is NOT offered as 2nd writing this semester.

This section satisfies the History Department’s pre-1700 requirement.

Sport and recreation are aspects of antiquity which are seldom studied in their own right. Because of the close association with religion, an important facet of classical civilization, the study of sports and recreation should reveal more of the psyche of the Greek and Roman people. The course covers the period c. 2000 B.C. to the 5th century A.D. from the point of view of spectator and participant. It will cover the main sporting and recreational activities of the Greeks and Romans; various games (Olympian, Nemean, Isthmian, Pythian), jumping, running, discus, javelin, wrestling, pentathlon, boxing, pankration, women in sports, Roman gladiatorial contests as well as bathing, music, dance, literature and travel. The course should give students enough knowledge of technical matters to be able to enjoy further exposure to classical life.

HIST341.010: ANCIENT ROME
Sidebotham   Limit 60   MWF 11:15-12:05

HIST353.010: MODERN GERMANY: 1770-1919
HIST353.080: HONORS
Brophy    Limit 30/5   TR 9:30-10:45
Only section 080 satisfies the 2nd writing requirement this semester.
This course surveys German history from the last decades of the Old Reich to the collapse of the German Empire in 1918. Divided into two sections, this course first looks at German society from enlightened absolutism to the Revolution of 1848. The first half addresses the political transition from absolutism to constitutionalism, social and cultural movements, and the Revolution of 1848. The second half examines the unification of Germany under the aegis of Prussian conservatism and its subsequent development as an industrialized nation-state. Themes in this latter half will cover: Bismarck and the constitutional conflict, industrialization, socialism, mass politics, international relations, and the First World War. Because Germany is so strongly stamped by the ideas and institutions of the nineteenth century, students seeking a fuller understanding of the major themes of twentieth-century Germany (e.g. Weimar Republic, National Socialism, Holocaust) ought to see this course as an important prerequisite.

HIST356.010,080: MODERN EUROPEAN INTELLECTUAL HISTORY (NON-2nd WRITING)

ONLY sections 011 and 080 satisfy the 2nd writing requirement.
An in-depth survey of major trends in Soviet history from the revolutions of 1917 to the present. In addition to basic political and economic history, we will stress social and cultural developments as well. Themes will include: the origins of the Bolshevik revolution, the rise of Stalinism, social and cultural life in the 1920s and 1930s, the effects of World War II, party, state, and society in the Khrushchev and Brezhnev years, the cultural and social revivals of the 1960s and 1970s. We will also spend time on current developments during the Gorbachev revolution. Readings will vary, including basic text book, memoir literature, fiction, original documents (in translation). If possible, we will also show some movies.

HIST363.010: MODERN JEWISH HISTORY
Oestreich  Limit 35  MW 3:35-4:50
Following the French Revolution Jewish life throughout Europe and the US underwent significant changes with respect to legal equality, civic rights, and religious reform. This course will focus on the ways in which Jewish history transformed and was transformed by the experience of modernity. This course is crosslisted with JWST363.

HIST365.012: TOPICS IN ASIAN HISTORY: JAPAN IN THE 20TH CENTURY
HIST365.013: WRITING SECTION
Flaherty  Limit 25/5  TR 9:30-10:45
ONLY section 013 satisfies the second writing requirement. This section satisfies the History Department’s African, Asian, Latin American or Middle Eastern requirement.
At the end of the nineteenth century, many in Japan called for an emulation of European “civilization and enlightenment.” One hundred years later, the pendulum had swung with many in the US arguing that the world should learn from Japan. During the intervening century, people in Japan charted a course of national consolidation and industrialization, while navigating the challenges of the twentieth century. This student-driven class will examine selected topics—ranging from democracy, literature, music, war, US occupation to economic growth and environmental tragedy—from Japan’s twentieth century past through to the present.

HIST367.012: THE PROPAGANDA OF EMPIRE
Marti Limit 20 TR 11:00-12:15
How is it that the violent occupation and exploitation of overseas colonies became viewed as a positive—even progressive—process? This course will explore how and why propaganda was generated and disseminated to drive investment, trade, migration, missionary work, and military interventions in imperial systems—particularly the British Empire—from the mid-nineteenth to the mid-twentieth century. A significant portion of this course will be devoted to teaching and applying digital research methods and basic computational techniques to collect and analyze primary sources. Programming experience is certainly not necessary, but students are required to bring a laptop to class and possess basic computer skills.

HIST368.010: MODERN CHINA, 1600’s TO PRESENT
Wang Limit 35 TR 3:30-4:45
This section is NOT offered as 2nd writing this semester.
This section satisfies the Multi-cultural requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences and the History Department’s African, Asian, Latin American or Middle Eastern requirement.
This course introduces students to modern Chinese history from the 1600s to the present. It provides students with insights into some issues that significantly influenced modern Chinese history with the aim of understanding what China was in the past, what China is today, and what China might be in the future. Students will explore the rise and prosperity of Manchu-ruled Qing China (1636/1644–1912), China’s decline with the coming of Western powers in the 19th century, China’s transformation into a modern nation-state after the nationalist and communist revolutions in the 20th century, and the so-called “rise of China” in the 21st century.

HIST373.010: MODERN IRELAND: 1660-PRESENT
HIST373.011: 2nd writing section
Montaño Limit 25/5 TR 11:00-12:15
ONLY section 11 satisfies the second writing requirement of the College of Arts and Science.
This survey of Irish history will cover the period between the plantations and partition. The issues of “Irishness” and Anglo-Irish relations—cultural, religious, economic, social, and political—will dominate the lecture topics. Readings will include Irish myths, Irish literature, and Anglo-Irish political debates, all with an eye towards Irish, Unionist, and English constructions of Ireland and the Irish. There will be no attempt to resolve the longstanding/current conflict in this course.

HIST375.010: BRITAIN SINCE 1714
Wasson Limit 35 MWF 11:15-12:05
Britain was the first industrial society and amassed the largest empire in human history. The rise of almost every element of modernity from democracy to feminism and technology to mass culture can only be understood by studying Britain since 1714. The world today was shaped by the rise and fall of the British Empire. This course also examines the growth and defense of liberal values in the wars against European tyranny from Napoleon to Hitler.

HIST376.010: ENGLAND: THE FORMATIVE YEARS, 1648-1798
Montano
Limit 35
TR 2:00-3:15
This course will attempt to synthesize the social, economic, political, cultural and colonial developments during England’s rise to world power from 1689-1789. Topics as diverse as the rise of the novel, the voyages of Captain Cook, origins of empire, growth of industry, Celtic fringe, novelty of popular politics, fascination with landscape, birth of class, and changing status of women will be covered. Students will be exposed to a wide range of primary materials and be expected to write a number of short critical essays.

HIST378.010: FAMILY, TRIBE & NATION: IDENTITY IN THE MIDDLE EAST
Matthee
Limit 30/5
MWF 1:25-2:15
These sections satisfy the Multi-cultural requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences and the History Department’s African, Asian, Latin American or Middle Eastern requirement. Addresses the formation of the nation-state in the Middle East since the early nineteenth century. It examines the transition of Middle Eastern societies from communities primarily based on kinship and tribal affiliation to states that derived much of their initial legitimacy from anti-colonial struggle and that, outwardly at least, appear as overarching administrative structures commanding authority. By exploring a number of case studies, North Africa, Egypt, Iraq, Lebanon, Turkey, Iran, this course exposes students to the multiple forms of identity, affinity and allegiance that exist in this part of the world, and encourages them to interrogate their own assumptions about individual and collective identity.

HIST382.010: HISTORY OF WESTERN MEDICINE
Buckley
Limit 30/5
MW 3:35-4:50
These sections do NOT satisfy the 2nd writing requirement this semester. This course examines the intellectual and social history of medicine in the West, with an emphasis on changes in medical theory and practice during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Topics include the laboratory revolution and rise of germ theory; the role of midwives and nurses in medical care; medical professionalization and debates about quackery; changing disease patterns and therapies; and state vs. individual responsibility in matters of public health.

HIST388.010: AMERICAN INDIAN HISTORY
Davies
Limit 35

Maloba  Limit 20/10  TR 11:00-12:15

ONLY section 011 satisfies the second writing requirement this semester.
These sections satisfy the History Department’s African, Asian, Latin American or Middle Eastern requirement.

This course surveys the complex historical development of the South African society. Starting with a description of the African societies before the arrival of Dutch settlers in the 17th century, this course traces the evolution of a racist society under Dutch and then British administrations. Important topics to be covered include: African resistance to white expansion; wars of resistance; impact of agricultural and labor laws on African societies; tensions in White society; Afrikaners in power since 1948-1994; African protest movements; Theories of Liberation; and South Africa after Apartheid. This course is crosslisted with BAMS397.

HIST399.012: THE CULTURE OF THE SCIENTIFIC REVOLUTION IN ITALY
HIST399.082: HONORS SECTION
Ray  Limit 10/5  TR 12:30-1:45

The "Scientific Revolution" of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries was a cumulative process that fundamentally transformed the understanding of nature, man, and the cosmos. The early modern period saw dramatic changes in thinking about the natural world: from the rise of experimental methods and the development of new techniques for observing and describing natural objects, to the replacement of a geocentric view of the universe with the heliocentric theory. In this course we will use scientific and literary texts to understand how scientific culture evolved in Italy, from the early humanists to the Renaissance alchemist/empiricists and collectors of natural “curiosities.” Our study will culminate in an examination of the work of Galileo and a consideration of his 1633 trial by the Inquisition. This course is crosslisted with FLL330.

HIST403.010: HISTORY, PHILOSOPHY, FUNCTIONS AND FUTURE OF MUSEUMS
Stoehr  Limit 10  T 5:00-8:00

This section does NOT satisfy the senior seminar requirement for the Department of History.
Introduction to philosophy, purposes, structure, historical development and future of museums, and botanical and zoological gardens. HIST411.010: SEMINAR: MODERN US POLITICAL ECONOMY
HIST411.080: HONORS
Alchon
Limit 12/3
T 3:30-6:30
Pre-requisite: HIST 268, or by permission.
Both sections satisfy second writing requirement of the College of Arts and Sciences.
In its larger and oldest sense, political economy marries historical inquiry and social criticism. This readings seminar seeks to do much the same as it introduces the American debates over authority, power, and democratic possibility, particularly as these have developed since the advent of corporate capitalism. The "managerial revolution;" the idea and significance of the middle class; the problems posed by meritocracy and by inherited privilege; and the questions forced by the American imperium ...these are among the topics to be covered.

HIST463.010: HISTORICAL ARCHAEOLOGY AND THE PUBLIC
DeCunzo
Limit 4
R 2:30-5:30
This section does NOT satisfy the senior seminar requirement for the Department of History.
For students planning a career in historical archaeology, public history, university teaching, the museum field and historic preservation. This course examines archaeology in the public arenas of cultural resource management, museum and historic site interpretation, and pre-collegiate education. The seminar addresses issues of archaeological philosophy, practice, and pedagogy through readings, discussion, and mini-internship projects in public archaeology. The course prepares students to engage the academic-public discourse relating to the construction, dissemination, and contesting of archaeological knowledge. It addresses the range of issues facing public archaeology, from the values and challenges of critical scholarship to the logistics of using historical archaeology to teach math to elementary students. This course is crosslisted with ANTH463/663 and MSST663.

HIST471.010: SEMINAR IN MEDIEVAL HISTORY: EUROPE IN THE 11th CENTURY
HIST471.080: HONORS
Callahan
Limit 12/3
M 3:35-6:35
Pre-requisite: HIST 268, or by permission.
This course satisfies the History Department’s Pre-1700 requirement.
This seminar will examine various aspects of the revival of Europe in the eleventh century. Some of the topics will be the Gregorian reform, the Norman conquest of England, the origins of the crusades, population increase and improvements in agricultural technology, the growth of towns and trade, improvements in education, Cluniac monasticism, and popular religion (with special attention to pilgrimages). The final grade will be based on a research paper of at least fifteen pages and on the amount and quality of seminar discussion.

This readings course covers the period from 1750 to 1800, and treats the Revolution as a crucible of consumer revolution, crisis of political and social authority, and extended period of change in households, commerce, cities and government. The course will position the American Revolution in Atlantic perspective, and consider the French and Haitian Revolutions as part of the era."
HIST646.010: SEMINAR IN EUROPEAN HISTORY: CREATING EUROPEAN MODERNITY
Shearer Limit 12 T 6:00-9:00
In this course, we will examine different aspects of what modernity meant in European societies during the 19th and 20th centuries, a modernity founded on the transforming processes of the French Revolution and industrial and bourgeois capitalism. We will read about and discuss metaphors of industrial modernity in the early nineteenth century. We will read about the transformation of the French rural areas, about the creation of national identities, the growth of modern bourgeois consumer culture, changing aesthetic views, taste and style, the modernization of city-scapes, interior design, changes in the locus of social power and cultural control, even revolutions in the view of the human body and sexuality—all associated in some way with European bourgeois modernity. We will examine World War I as a crisis of modernity and will read about the attempts to “recast” European modernity in the war’s aftermath. In the final weeks, we will explore the cult of modern-ism that arose during the 1920s and 1930s as both an aesthetic and a political movement, and we will take a look at the great dictatorships of the interwar years as the apogee of modern states and economies.

HIST663.010: SEMINAR IN AMERICAN HISTORY: HISTORICAL ARCHAEOLOGY AND THE PUBLIC
DeCunzo Limit 2 R 2:30-5:30
Graduate students only or permission of instructor.
For students planning a career in historical archaeology, public history, university teaching, the museum field and historic preservation. This course examines archaeology in the public arenas of cultural resource management, museum and historic site interpretation, and pre-collegiate education. The seminar addresses issues of archaeological philosophy, practice, and pedagogy through readings, discussion, and mini-internship projects in public archaeology. The course prepares students to engage the academic-public discourse relating to the construction, dissemination, and contesting of archaeological knowledge. It addresses the range of issues facing public archaeology, from the values and challenges of critical scholarship to the logistics of using historical archaeology to teach math to elementary students.

HIST671.010: EUROPE IN THE 11th CENTURY
Callahan Limit 2 M 3:35-6:35
History graduate students only or permission of instructor.
This seminar will examine various aspects of the revival of Europe in the eleventh century. Some of the topics will be the Gregorian reform, the Norman conquest of England, the origins of the crusades, population increase and improvements in agricultural technology, the growth of towns and trade, improvements in education, Cluniac monasticism, and popular religion (with special attention to pilgrimages). The final grade will be based on a research paper of at least fifteen pages and on the amount and quality of seminar discussion.

HIST693.011: PROBLEMS IN TEACHING HISTORY AND SOCIAL STUDIES
Joyce Limit 2 T 5:00-8:00
Helps beginning teachers carry out planned instructional strategies, analyze their teaching behavior, evaluate the effectiveness of their instruction and modify their instructional plans based on their teaching experience.
HIST745.010: TOPICS IN GLOBAL ARTS & HUMANITIES: WORLD RELIGIONS

Fox
Limit 12
R 5:00-8:00

History graduate students only or permission of instructor.

Course investigates the spiritual and creative heart of world cultures and societies over the course of the human endeavor. All instructors teaching this course will employ a variety of frameworks for learning about extended global processes in world history, such as civilizational, comparative, and world systems approaches. This course will enable students to apply a single global process as an aid to framing and connecting the course of human history. While HIST745 may vary by topic and academic discipline, interdisciplinary perspectives on key issues and concepts will be emphasized. The topic for spring 2016 is world religion and philosophy.

HIST805.010: RESEARCH AND WRITING SEMINAR: THE U.S. SINCE 1860

Davis
Limit 10
W 2:30-5:30

History graduate students only or permission of instructor.

This course examines the method and craft of historical research and writing. Over the course of the semester each student will write an article-length paper based in primary sources on a topic from post-1860 U.S. history. Students will also read and critique the writing of their peers. Readings and discussions will cover topics such as evaluating sources and interpreting evidence, the bibliographic essay, research methods, and the writing / editing / rewriting process.

HIST867.010: RESEARCH AND WRITING SEMINAR: HISTORY BEYOND BORDERS

White
Limit 10
R 2:00-5:00

History graduate students only or permission of instructor.

The basic theme of this research and writing class is movement: of people, goods, or ideas across imperial, national, or other kinds of boundaries. In class we will discuss the challenges and rewards of researching and writing history “beyond borders.” Students will use primary sources to develop an article-length paper on an appropriate topic. Class members will help each other in the process of refining an argument and producing a polished piece of writing.
