HIST 130.010: ISLAMIC NEAR EAST (600-1500)
HIST 130.080: HONORS SECTION
Matthee  Limit: 37/3  TR 11:00-12:15

This section satisfies the multi-cultural requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences and satisfies the African, Asian, Latin American, or Middle Eastern requirement for the History BA & History Education BA degree.

This course offers an overview of Middle Eastern history from the beginnings of Islam until the age of European discovery and exploration. Surveying the background and circumstances of the rise of Islam; the creation of the Islamic Empire and the subsequent political, social, economic and religious history of Islamic west Asia and north Africa until the rise of the so-called gunpowder states: the Ottoman, Safavid and Mughal Empires. This course familiarizes students with a variety of cultures and the way in which they interacted and melded to become an overarching Islamic civilization. This course encourages students to consider the composite and variable nature of world cultures. It pursues comparison and contrasts both within Islamic civilization itself, Arab, Byzantine-Christian, Persian and Turkish contribution, and between that civilization and medieval Europe at various stages such as initial confrontation and conquest, cultural and diplomatic exchange, Reconquista and Crusades. Lectures, discussion, reading. Take-home mid-term, term paper and a final.

HIST221.010: FILM & AMERICAN SOCIETY
Johanningsmeier Limit: 70 Online - Asynchronous
In this course we will be learning about the history and development of Hollywood and the movie industry as modern business and spectacle, greatly influential in American (and world) culture today. We will be viewing and discussing certain classic American films and film genres. Topics include: the Hollywood celebrity machine and the “star system;” trends in direction and design; the “studio system,” business and corporate structure; themes of gender, race and “making it in America;” the gangster films; the Cold War and American filmmaking; sex, violence, and censorship.

HIST 223.010: NATURE AND HISTORY
HIST 223.080: HONORS SECTION
Ott                Limit: 37/3 TR 9:30-10:45
In this course, students will study the ways people have created nature displays dating back to cabinets of curiosity in the Renaissance up to present day wildlife TV programs. We will analyze how people the world over cataloged and exhibited plants and animals, including human being, in venues such as: botanical dictionaries, gardens and arboretums, private menageries, museum dioramas, TV and film, front yards and zoos among others. This interdisciplinary course will tie together the themes of nature, science, and popular culture. Its purpose is to have students learn about and analyze one of the central means that people encounter and engage with the natural world, as object of display. At the end of it, students will be able to identify historic trends in human-nature encounters; they will have acquired skill in interpreting images, objects and exhibitions and they will be acquainted with pivotal works in the fields of environmental humanities and museum studies.

HIST 224.010: RACE AND RACISM: GLOBAL HISTORY AND REPRESENTATION
Bil                Limit: 7/3 MW 3:35-4:50
This course satisfies the University’s multi-cultural requirement.
Racism is a hot-button issue globally. Although thoroughly debunked and are more widely condemned than ever, it nevertheless continues to surface in government policies, popular representations, and brutal acts of violence. What is it that makes racism so intractable? This course works to answer that question by analyzing racism as a problem that’s deeply embedded in Western societies, albeit similarly prevalent in many non-Western countries. We’ll also look at how racism connects with other social categories such as Indigeneity, gender, sexuality, disability, religion and class. And in addition to considering how racism has operated to oppress, exclude and scapegoat, we’ll also be attentive to how marginalized groups have fought back.
This course is cross-listed with AFRA 224, ANTH 224, ENGL 224, GEOG 224, & WOMS 224.
HIST 241.010: HISTORY OF CHRISTIANITY TO 1300
HIST 241.080: HONORS SECTION
Frassetto  Limit: 35/5       MWF 10:10-11:00

Both sections satisfy the Pre-1700 requirement for the History BA and History Education BA degree.
A survey of the evolution of Christianity from its origins to 1300. This course will examine the apostolic age and era of persecutions, the triumph of the church in the Roman Empire and Christianity and the barbarian kingdoms, and the church during the age of the papal monarchy and crusades.

HIST 268.010: SEMINAR: HURRICANS, PLAGUES & FAMINE
HIST 268.080: HONORS SECTION
Buckley  Limit: 12/3       MW 3:35-4:50

Both sections satisfy the University’s DLE requirement.
This course examines episodes of catastrophic upheaval from in the Americas from colonial-era hurricanes to recent glacial melt and flooding, to understand how historians and social scientists interpret what are sometimes termed “natural disasters.” What social and cultural factors shape a community’s response to such events? What long-term impact on social structure and political organization does each have? How can we incorporate non-human agents, like pathogens and climatic forces, into our understanding of human history? After reading several model texts, students will undertake their own social history of a “natural” disaster.

HIST 268.011: SEMINAR: THE CRUSADES
HIST 268-081: HONORS SECTION
Duggan  Limit: 12/3       TR 11:00-12:15

Both sections satisfy the University’s DLE requirement.
This seminar will explore the origins and unfolding of the Crusades (1095-1291) through an intensive examination and mining of primary sources. Discussion, several short papers and one long one, no examinations.

HIST 268.012: SEMINAR: VIETNAM CONFLICTS
McLeod  Limit: 15       R 3:30-6:30

This section satisfies the University’s DLE requirement.
History 268, Vietnam Conflicts, explores the events Americans call the “Vietnam War” and Vietnamese Revolutionaries call “War to Resist America and for National Salvation” in the larger context of decolonization and revolution in the Vietnamese-speaking lands of the former French Indochina. Through readings, discussion, music, images, film and lecture, class members will become familiar with a common body of information and interpretations. Each student will then select, in consultation with the instructor, a theme or topic that will become the subject of a research paper that will be presented orally to the seminar as well as submitted in written form to the professor at the end of the course.
HIST 268.015: SEMINAR: ORAL HISTORY – AFRICAN AMERICANS AND THE UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE
Horowitz  Limit: 15  M 6:00-9:00
This section satisfies the University’s DLE requirement.
This course will train students to use oral history interviews to document the historical experiences of African American employees and students at the University of Delaware. Students will learn oral history methodology and read historical materials pertaining to race and civil rights in Delaware since 1950. Requirements include conducting and indexing at least one interview and writing several interpretive papers. The interviews will be designed to consider historical experiences at the university and how those experiences had ramifications for the interviewees and the larger community. The interviewees will be longtime UD employees (20+ years) or former students who attended UD at least 30 years ago.

HIST 303.010: WOMEN IN JUDAISM
HIST 303.080: HONORS SECTION
Zavadivker  Limit: 10/1  TR 9:30-10:45
This course examines the role of women in global Jewish history, culture, and religion from ancient times to the present. Sources of study include primary religious texts about women and gender in Judaism, as well as interpretations, personal accounts, and historical narratives of different periods of history. Topics to be addressed will include leadership roles and sources of authority, law and custom, family life, education, transmission, and reform of religious law. This course is cross-listed with JWST 303/WOMS 303.

HIST 309.010: MONEY, MARKETS & MISCHIEF - U.S. BUSINESS AND POLITICAL ECONOMY SINCE 1865
Russ  Limit: 35  TR 11:00-12:15
From the “robber barons” of the 19th Century to Bill Gates and Martha Stewart, this course will examine the ways in which business and business leaders have played a central role in American life. Among topics we will explore are the development of America’s consumer culture; American business abroad; the role of foreign business activities in the U.S. and how McDonalds, Disney and the Mall came to be our ubiquitous national symbols. The course will consist of lectures, weekly discussion of core reading assignments and the research and writing of a paper.

HIST 315.010: HISTORY FOR TEACHERS
Kim  Limit: 35  MWF 11:15-12:05
Only open to Teacher Education students (from the School of Education, the College of Arts & Sciences or elsewhere).
The purpose of this course is to conceptualize and organize American history content in ways that improve the teaching of Social Studies at the elementary and secondary school level.
HIST 316.010: CIVIC ENGAGEMENT IN AMERICA
Joyce    Limit: 35            TR 3:30-4:45

This course satisfies the University’s DLE requirement.
Investigate how civic engagement has shaped America. Analyze the ways that citizens actively participate in contemporary American society versus how they have done so at key junctures of the past. Begin by collectively defining what it means to be an engaged citizen, then work together to identify core American values and attitudes essential to encouraging an engaged citizenry. This knowledge will be used to propose ideas for engaging the next generation of citizens. For Social Studies Education majors or by instructor permission only.

HIST 325.010: AFRICAN AMERICAN HISTORY TO THE CIVIL WAR
HIST 325.011: 2nd WRITING SECTION
Benjamin Golden  Limit: 5 HIST/10 HIST           TR 2:00-3:15

Both sections satisfy the University’s multi-cultural requirement. Only section 011 satisfies the 2nd writing requirement for the College of Arts & Sciences.
This course will explore the development of race, gender, work, and culture from the colonial era through the Civil War. Using primary and secondary sources, we will explore the social, political, religious, and economic factors that produced change and transformation in the lives of African American men and women. This course has several goals including providing a broad introduction to the interdisciplinary field of African American Studies. Through history, art, religion, film, music and cultural criticism, we will discuss and explore the construction of African-American identities during the 17th, 18th and 19th centuries. This course is cross listed with AFRA 304.

HIST 328.010: AMERICAN CAPITALISM SINCE 1815
HIST 328.011: SECOND WRITING SECTION
HIST 328.080: HONORS SECTION
Norwood    Limit: 20/7/3        TR 11:00-12:15

Only section 011 satisfies the 2nd writing requirement for the College of Arts & Sciences.
America and capitalism grew up together. This course offers a broad overview of that mutual development, charting the history of US capitalism from its origins in the early Atlantic world to today’s precarious position in the global economy. Our concern in this course will be in exploring how capitalist systems have been created and contested in the US, over time – and how that history shapes our present moment. Topics will range from the consequences of slavery to the rise of the multinational corporation; from the impact of wage labor on gender relations to the effects of the business cycle on styles of business organizations; and from arguments over trade and immigration, to debates over the proper role of government in supporting development.
HIST 333.010: BLACK WOMEN’S HISTORY TO 1865

Both sections satisfy the University’s multi-cultural requirement. Only section 011 satisfies the 2nd writing requirement for the College of Arts & Sciences.

Benjamin Golden  Limit: 6 HIST/4 HIST TR 11:00-12:15

This course brings into focus the lived experiences of Black women throughout United States history through the end of the Civil War. Beginning with the first African women to encounter North American shores in the 17th century, Black women’s knowledge, creativity, activism, and community leadership have been integral to both Black people’s perseverance, and to the evolution of this country. Throughout this course, Black women’s voices will be central. We will read Black women’s writing, examine the ways Black women fashioned their own bodies, and we will survey Black women’s art throughout this early period. We will examine a wide range of sources including periodicals, slave narratives, memoir/autobiography, oral history, poetry, visual art, film, and music, in addition to assigned secondary literature. In doing so, this course surveys the multitude of Black women’s experiences and perspectives across class, region, and time. We will move both chronologically and thematically as we explore core themes such as labor, motherhood, sisterhood, sexuality, resistance, respectability, and political activism. A primary goal will be to consider how Black women have worked to determine their own lives and possess their own bodies while other groups have sought to dominate and control them. This course is cross-listed with AFRA 329 & WOMS 341.

HIST 337.011: TOPICS IN AMERICAN HISTORY: LATINOS IN THE UNITED STATES

Robles Limit: 35 MWF 2:30-3:20

Latinos are one of the fastest growing minoritized groups in the United States. And while they have been incorporated into life and work in the United States for many decades -in some cases centuries- they are often perceived as members of an “alien” culture. In other words, Latinos are and have become “American”, yet they are and often remain “Other.” This course aims to give students a greater understanding of the complexity of this social position by offering a history on the background, immigration, assimilation, and status of Latinos in the United States. The objective is to offer a broad perspective on the background and cultural lives of Latinos in order to assess the impact that this group will make in this country in the near future. In light of recent U.S. Census data, legislation and reconfigurations of geopolitical power relations we will also explore questions relating to immigration, citizenship and transnational politics.
HIST 337.012: TOPICS IN AMERICAN HISTORY: AMERICAN ASSASSINATIONS
Russ
Limit: 35
TR 3:30-4:45
From the assassination of Abraham Lincoln to the murder of John Lennon, the United States periodically has been roiled by the assassinations of leading political and social figures. Over the course of the semester, we shall examine these traumatic events and the people and circumstances surrounding them. As part of the weekly lectures and reading assignments, we also will consider the role of media and film in shaping assassinations and our understanding of them in U.S. history. There will be one mid-term exam, a paper and a final.

HIST 337.013: TOPICS IN AMERICAN HISTORY: THE LONG HISTORY OF ANTI-ASIAN RACISM IN AMERICA
Kim
Limit: 35
MW 3:35-4:50
Since the outbreak of the Coronavirus, anti-Asian violence has risen over 150%. This course examines the historical roots of anti-Asian racism in order to inform our understanding of contemporary issues, including race relations, gender, immigration, and citizenship. We will analyze how stereotypes, such as the “yellow peril” and the “model minority,” have been used to scapegoat and discriminate against Asian Americans. The course spans the time from the Chinese Exclusion Act in 1882 through the Cold War conflicts in Asia and the Civil Rights Movement in the U.S.

HIST 347.010: WAR AND AMERICAN SOCIETY
Suisman
Limit: 35
TR 2:00-3:15
This course explores the relationship between war and American society from the Civil War to the present, through readings, films, lectures, and discussions. It invites students to analyze the social consequences of war and the ways that the “home front” has both reflected and shaped the forces driving American military conduct. Themes include race, gender, memory, and debates over conscription, propaganda, and civil rights in wartime.

HIST 349.010: MODERN LATIN AMERICA: 1800-PRESENT
HIST 349.080: HONORS SECTION
Cruz
Limit: 25/5
W 3:35-6:35
Both sections satisfy the 2nd writing requirement for the College of Arts & Sciences and the African, Asian, Latin American, or Middle Eastern requirement for the History BA and the History Education BA degree. This course introduces students to select topics in Latin American history and culture through film, documentaries, readings, class discussion, and lectures. We will use films as a window to delve into the region’s history, and as a motivation to learn more about it. Topics include the legacy of colonization, the revolutions of independence, the process of state building in the 19th century, and the struggles for political, social, and economic modernization of the 20th century.
HIST 351.010: EUROPE IN CRISIS: 1919 – 1945
Haidinger Limit: 35 TR 12:30-1:45
This course examines the strife-torn decades in Western Europe following the First World War. The crisis of liberal democracies, the emergence of fascism and communism, the Spanish Civil War, and the origins of the Second World War will be the central political themes around which other significant social, cultural, and economic issues will be investigated.

HIST 359.080: HONORS SECTION
Shearer Limit: 30/5 MWF 9:05-9:55
History of the Soviet Union An in-depth survey of major trends in Soviet history from the revolutions of 1917 to the revolution of 1991. In addition to basic political and economic history, we will stress social and cultural developments. Themes will include the origins of the Bolshevik revolution, the rise of Stalinism, social and cultural life in the 1920s and 1930s, the effects of World War II, party, state, and society in the Khrushchev and Brezhnev years, and the cultural and social revivals of the 1960s and 1970s. We will also spend time on developments during the Gorbachev years and the revolutionary events of 1991. There are no pre-requisites for the course, but students are encouraged to approach the history of the Soviet Union with an open mind—to challenge and change prejudices and preconceptions derived from our own Cold War history.

HIST 361.010: FRANCE AT WAR
HIST 361.080: HONORS SECTION
White Limit: 30/5 MWF 10:10-11:00
In this course we will focus on the three wars that made France’s 20th century so turbulent. France ended up on the winning side in the Great War (World War I) but in the process lost 1.4 million of its citizens, leading Winston Churchill to comment that the victory was “bought so dear as to be indistinguishable from defeat.” In World War II, a humiliating defeat to German invaders in 1940 led to four years of occupation and painful choices as to whether to collaborate, resist, or accommodate to the Nazis and their demands. The war in Algeria in North Africa between 1954 and 1962 was a different type of conflict, as the military and settlers of European descent struggled to maintain French rule in the face of an anti-colonial nationalist uprising by the Arab and Berber majority. We will explore these dramatic events with the aid of primary sources and film, paying special attention to the social dynamics of each conflict and addressing the important question of how these wars have been remembered.
HIST 364.010: CONFUCIUS, EMPEROR, AND LAMA: EURASIAN CHINA SINCE 1300

Wang Limit: 35 MWF 2:30-3:20

This section satisfies the University’s multi-cultural requirement and the African, Asian, Latin American, or Middle Eastern requirement for the History BA and the History Education BA degree.

China became a vast Eurasian state during the past seven centuries by integrating Manchuria, Mongolia, Xinjiang, Tibet, and the mountainous southwestern borderlands into its territory. Spreading from Beijing to the Himalayas, China presents itself as a multi-ethnic and multi-cultural empire, which in turn poses various challenges to China’s governance and affects China’s relations with neighboring countries and the world. This course examines how China developed into a Eurasian state from the Yuan Dynasty of the Mongol Empire in the fourteenth century to the People’s Republic of China in the twentieth century. It discusses the ongoing consequences of this transformation for East Asia, Inner Asia, Southeast Asia, and the world. Major topics include the rise and fall of Mongol and Manchu regimes in China, China’s conquests of Xinjiang and Tibet, the reconstruction of the Great Wall, racial and ethnic relations within the Chinese empire, Ming China’s maritime voyages, Sinocentric world order and international trade, Jesuit missionaries in China, rituals and religions, domestic and cross-border migrations, border negotiations, international law, Chinese and Western colonialism and imperialism, and modern Chinese nationalism.

HIST 400.010: HISTORY CAPSTONE SEMINAR: DRUGS & STIMULANTS IN HISTORY

HIST 400.080: HONORS SECTION

Matthee Limit: 13/3 T 3:30-6:30

Both sections satisfy the 2nd writing requirement for the College of Arts & Sciences.

This course examines the multiple and changing ways that human beings have used (and abused) psychoactive drugs and stimulants - from opium, hashish, and tobacco to caffeinated beverages and alcohol – either as a lubricant of sociability, a means to seek oblivion from hard and dreary lives, a way to self-medicate or as a morale booster for frightened soldiers. Beginning with the great “Maritime Discoveries” of the 15th and 16th centuries when drugs and stimulants began to swirl around the world; we will follow patterns of commerce, of introduction, resistance, acceptance, indigenization, and popularization. We will consider how drugs played a role in conquest and war; how their use has often expressed class differences while contributing to the making of the modern world. Regarding consumption, we will compare the way in which governments have often both encouraged and sought to repress drug use. The scope of the course is global but most attention will be paid to Eurasia, with a focus on Europe, the Middle East, South Asia, and China.
HIST 400.011: HISTORY CAPSTONE SEMINAR: PROBLEMS IN EUROPEAN HISTORY

HIST 400.081: HONORS SECTION
Shearer Limit: 13/3 M 3:35-6:35

Both sections satisfy the 2nd Writing requirement for the College of Arts & Sciences.

This will be a directed reading and writing seminar in European twentieth-century history. Each student will choose a topic, create a bibliography, read intensively on that topic, and produce a paper and class presentations. Because students will be reading in selective topics, this course will assume a mid-level (300 or higher) knowledge of Soviet or European twentieth-century history. Also, because of the nature of the course, we will not meet each week as we would in a regular course. Rather, we will meet as a class periodically to hear progress reports and discuss common themes and problems.

HIST 442.010: INTERVENTIONS IN BLACK GENDER HISTORY

Hicks Limit: 2 W 6:00-9:00

This section satisfies the University’s multi-cultural requirement.

This course will interrogate how Black identity shapes conceptions of womanhood and manhood over space and time. In particular, we will examine the varied ways that Black people have defined, understood, and challenged individual and communal notions of femininity and masculinity. In doing so, we will consider how a gendered analysis shapes our understanding of family, power, sexuality, activism, and resistance. Focusing on a range of scholarly interventions from classic as well as recent texts, we will explore major themes and developments in the interpretation of Black gender history. While the course is designed for historians, it explicitly incorporates scholarship in other disciplines to encourage students to develop interdisciplinary approaches to the study of Black life. This course is cross-listed with AFRA 434/ WOMS 434 and is dual-listed with HIST 644/ AFRA 643.

HIST 460.010: RACE AND INEQUALITY IN DELAWARE

HIST 460.080: HONORS SECTION
Helton/Norwood Limit: 3/2 HIST T 2:00-5:00

Both sections satisfy the University’s multi-cultural requirement.

As the first in a series of new seminars inspired by the UD Antiracism Initiative, HIST/ENGL/ANTH 460/660 will explore the history of UD in the age of enslavement and emancipation. We will work collaboratively to investigate the university’s historical ties to slavery and its relationship to neighboring communities of indentured, enslaved, and free people of color. Students will conduct archival research, work with community historians, and publicly engage the UD and Newark communities in conversation about the ramifications of past social injustice. This course is cross-listed with AFRA 460/ ANTH 460/ ENGL 460/ GEOG 428 and dual-listed with AFRA 661/ ANTH 660/ ENGL 660/ GEOG 628.
HIST 464.010: INTERNSHIP IN HISTORY
Flaherty    Limit:               TBD

This course satisfies the University’s DLE requirement.
In conjunction with a faculty mentor, the student identifies potential sites and defines the project that will emerge out of their experience in the field—including projects such as a site-based public history, experiential reflections, or a research paper. Students may seek assistance from the department’s internship coordinator in approaching appropriate sites and identifying potential faculty sponsors. Students interested in completing a HIST 464 internship, should contact Dr. Flaherty (flaherty@udel.edu), the History Department's Undergraduate Studies Chair.

HIST 491.010: PLANNING A COURSE OF INSTRUCTION
Joyce    Limit: 10          MW 8:40-9:55; F 8:00-11:00
Open to Senior Social Studies Education majors only. Requires field observation in school placement. This course satisfies the University’s DLE requirement.
This is a methods course for teaching social studies in secondary school. It brings together subject content knowledge and pedagogical approaches to stimulate and assess student learning. You will learn how to create and implement daily lesson plans. You must be approved for student teaching prior to taking this course. You must also register for HIST 492-LAB. The field placement for HIST 491 will take place on Fridays from 8:00 am - 11:00 am at your school placement.

HIST 492.010: INTEGRATING INSTRUCTIONAL TECHNOLOGY INTO SOCIAL STUDIES TEACHING
Suchanec    Limit: 20             R 5:00-8:00
(1-credit short course: Meets 8/29/21 to 9/26/21)
Open to Senior Social Studies Education students who are enrolled in HIST 491 or by special permission.
This course provides future Social Studies teachers with the technology skills necessary to effectively integrate technology into classroom activities and lesson planning. You will fuse sound instructional technology skills with the academic content and instructional methods acquired during your academic career. Topics include using the SAMR Model to enhance lessons, blended learning, game-based learning, flipping a classroom, internet professionalism, accessing knowledge and instructional materials on the internet including: Open Educational Resources (OERs); using software and hardware to enhance classroom instruction and assessment tools. Due to the nature of the course, laptops are strongly recommended for face-to-face sessions.
HISTORY GRADUATE COURSE OFFERINGS

HIST 600.010: SEMINAR: APPROACHES TO HISTORY
Brophy    Limit: 12   T 6:00-9:00
This seminar introduces graduate students to a variety of methods and questions that have shaped the field in recent decades. Exploring a range of American, European, and non-western histories, the course charts some of the generative approaches to the study of history to provide a better understanding of the field’s diversity, richness, and its present challenges. Weekly seminar discussions will focus on a featured book or selected articles (some “classics,” some influential recent work). Assignments will include two short essays and a longer term-paper.

HIST 611.010: SEMINAR IN AMERICAN HISTORY: TWO AMERICAS IN THE 19TH CENTURY UNITED STATES: UNDERSTANDING THE CIVIL WAR
Heyrman   Limit: 12             M 2:30-5:30
History 611 focuses on the deepening political and cultural alienation of North and South that brought about the Civil War. Seminar members will discuss the most influential secondary works treating the antebellum years and the conflict itself.

HIST 617.010: SEMINAR IN GENDER & WOMEN’S HISTORY
Davis    Limit: 12             W 2:30-5:30
This reading seminar introduces students to major historical themes and historiographical trends in the histories of women, gender, and sexuality in the United States. Readings will include the period of European encounter with native populations in North America and the transatlantic slave trade, the colonial period and Early Republic and the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Topics will include racial, ethnic, and religious diversity (and intersectionality) in these fields, women and gender in American politics, gender as a category of analysis, and sexuality (and "queer" history) as an interpretive lens.

HIST 644.010: INTERVENTIONS IN BLACK GENDER HISTORY

HIST 680.010: STUDIES IN WORLD HISTORY: FOOD CULTURE
Ott        Limit: 12        R 2:00-5:00
This class will study global history through the lens of food production and consumption. We will investigate foodways through topics, such as labor, environment, gender, ethnicity, globalization, identity, and power and through the aesthetics and culture of food, including the pleasures of cooking and eating. The course’s goal is for students to learn about the meanings of food and how the simple act of eating can reveal interconnections among so many diverse aspects of society, cultures, and the environment. Another goal is to introduce students to foodways as an accessible yet deeply penetrating tool they can add to their methodological approaches for studying history and cultures. At the course’s completion, students will be well versed in major methodological approaches and works in the diverse field of food studies, they will have gained familiarity with the global history of food, and they will have enhanced their ability to write critical review essays. The course may also include a public humanities component, so students will apply their skills and expertise to creating public programming at a cultural institution.

HIST 680.010: SEMINAR: ENVIRONMENTAL HISTORY
Ott        Limit: 12        R 2:00-5:00
This course will explore the interrelationships between the natural world and world cultures from eighteenth-century South African Plains to twenty-first-century Los Angeles neighborhoods. We will study the complicated ways the natural world has impacted American history and cultures and, in turn, how Americans’ ideas and activities have reshaped the natural world around them. We will study theoretical approaches regarding the meaning of nature through the lens of race, class and gender; and topics that highlight the complex ties between people and nature, such as wilderness recreation, urban rivers, environmental justice, consumer culture, and food. Students will learn how to access scholarly work in environmental humanities, to use the environment as a tool to study cultures, to understand the historic sources of current nature-culture dynamics, such as Climate Change; and to interpret a variety of visual, material, and written source materials.
HIST 692.011: PLANNING A COURSE OF INSTRUCTION

MSST 203.010: INTRODUCTION TO MUSEUMS
Van Horn                Limit: 12        TR 11:00-12:15
Introduction to the history, operations and future of museums, historic sites, archives, and related cultural organizations. Examines collecting and collection management, conservation of collections, exhibition development, public programs and museum education, and digital outreach. Museum careers and volunteer engagement are explored. This course is cross-listed with ARTH 201/HIST 203.

MSST 413: THE DIGITAL MUSEUM
Morgan                Limit: 6              R 6:00-9:00
Examines the use of digital technology museums. Topics include: best practices in museum web design; virtual exhibitions; digital communication strategies; digital image processing; publicly-accessible collection databases; game design and animation for education use and application design. This course is dual-listed with MSST 603.

MSST464.000: MUSEUM STUDIES INTERNSHIP
Cohen                            TBD
This course satisfies the DLE requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences. CORE for MSST minor internship hours.
Develops essential skills for professionals in cultural organizations, ranging from research and public interpretation, programming, or exhibition development (both in-person and digital) to community outreach, administration, fundraising, finance, and marketing. Students devise their internship in communication with the MSST Program Coordinator and their host institution in advance, and then independently complete a project for their host institution that develops and demonstrates the skills they have targeted. Students interested in completing a MSST464 internship must secure pre-approval of their placement from Ms. Meg Hutchins. Permission needed from the Department to take this course.

MSST 600:010: INTRODUCTION TO MUSEUM STUDIES: HISTORY AND PROFESSIONAL PRACTICE
Cohen                Limit: 15        M 6:00-9:00
This is a CORE course for the MSST Graduate Certificate.
Introduction to museums and other organizations that interpret evidence with and for the non-academic public. Covers issues in collecting and exhibition practice, education and audience engagement, finance, and governance, and evolving professional ethics.
MSST 603.010: THE DIGITAL MUSEUM
Morgan            Limit: 6            R 6:00-9:00
Examines the use of digital technology museums.
