PHI ALPHA THETA

The Department supports the campus chapter of Phi Alpha Theta, the international Honor Society in History. To be eligible for membership, an undergraduate must complete at least twelve semester hours in history, with a 3.1 average in history courses taken, and a 3.0 overall GPA excluding history. A maximum of 3 credit hours of online, transfer, or AP credits may be counted towards membership eligibility. Phi Alpha Thet a, with chapters on college campuses in all fifty states, as well as Washington, D.C., Puerto Rico, Canada, and the Philippine Islands, is one of the most respected honor societies in the country. Its student members are eligible for one of a number of prizes and scholarship awards annually.

Initiation is held each spring for eligible students. Letters of invitation are mailed in early February. For more information, contact the Department of History, 236 John Munroe Hall.

HISTORY CLUB

The objective of this organization is to assist fellow students in research (especially younger students, who may not have had to perform research of a similar level before), enhance our own analytical skills, and promote the appreciation of history within the student body of the University of Delaware. Membership is open to all full-time, matriculated undergraduate students at the University of Delaware who agree with the purpose and object of the group. Visit the History Club website to learn more. https://www.history.udel.edu/programs/undergraduateprograms/history-club

HIST104.010: WORLD HISTORY II
ENROLL THROUGH SECTIONS 104.020D-024D
Rawat Limit 100 MW+ 11:15-12:05
This section satisfies multi-cultural requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences. This course introduces students to world history as a story of globalization. Rather than focusing centrally on national histories or political developments in world history, we will approach world history through a focus on the role of commodities in the making of the modern world. Spanning the period from circa 1300 AD to the present, we will study the role of the commodities (spices, sugar, cotton, tea & opium, oil) in forging new global connections, fashioning new centers of production, creating new ways of manufacturing, and spurring innovative techniques of production. The course will identify interdependencies and forms of interconnectedness that have shaped political, economic, social, and cultural changes across the world.

HIST104.011: WORLD HISTORY II
HIST104.081: HONORS SECTION
Flaherty Limit 40/5 MWF 10:10-11:00
This section satisfies multi-cultural requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences. World History (HIST 104) explores the creation of our contemporary world through an examination of the global past, connecting events, experiences, systems, and processes to the present. The course does this through lectures, in-class exercises, and discussion grounded in the reading of primary sources (historical sources by people trying to make sense of their world as change happened).
HIST104.012: WORLD HISTORY II
Davies     Limit 100     TR 12:30-1:45
This section satisfies multi-cultural requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences.
Principal political, economic, cultural and social developments in world history from the 16th century to the present, relating the past to the present. Equal weight given to the history of Asia, Africa, the Americas and Europe.

ENROLL THROUGH SECTIONS 106.020D-024D
Suisman Limit 100     MW+ 12:20-1:10
This survey course focuses on the history of the United States from the late 19th century to the present era. Although we will touch upon a wide variety of topics, the course will pay particular attention to politics, economics, and social reform movements in the period. The course will consist of both lectures and group discussion.
HIST106.012: UNITED STATES HISTORY SINCE 1865
Ames Limit 40 MWF 9:05-9:55
This course will survey the major social, cultural, and political developments in the United States from 1865 to the present.

HIST106.013: UNITED STATES HISTORY SINCE 1865
Alchon Limit 50 MW 3:35-4:50
This is a course about the United States of today, about how we have come into our present condition. Introducing issues that have preoccupied Americans since the late nineteenth century, the course invites students to develop thoughtful opinions through the arts of oral and written argument.

HIST106.014: UNITED STATES HISTORY SINCE 1865
Hill Limit 40 TR 12:30-1:45
This survey course examines the history of the United States from the Reconstruction era to the present. While lectures and class discussions will cover important political and economic developments, this course will place special emphasis on social and cultural history themes. By analyzing both secondary and primary sources, we will concentrate on the perspectives of ordinary Americans. In addition, this class will focus on themes, such as the construction of race and gender in society, the impact of social reform movements, and the influence of popular and print culture. Through a close analysis of primary sources, such as newspaper articles and material culture, students will gain a better understanding of social, cultural, political and economic trends in American history.

HIST106.015: UNITED STATES HISTORY SINCE 1865
Pitock Limit 40 TR 3:30-4:45
This course will survey the major social, cultural, and political developments in the United States from 1865 to the present.

HIST130.010: ISLAMIC MIDDLE EAST, 600-1500
HIST130.080: HONORS SECTION
Matthee Limit 35/5 TR 11:00-12:15
This section satisfies multi-cultural requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences. It also satisfies the History Department's African, Asian, Latin American or Middle Eastern requirement and the Pre-1700 requirement.

This course offers an overview of Middle Eastern history from the beginnings of Islam until the age of European discovery and exploration. Surveying the background and circumstances of the rise of Islam, the creation of the Islamic Empire, and the subsequent political, social, economic, and religious history of Islamic west Asia and north Africa until the rise of the so-called gunpowder states, the Ottoman, Safavid, and Mughal Empires, this course familiarizes students with a variety of cultures and the way in which they interacted and melded to become an overarching Islamic civilization. This course encourages students to consider the composite and variable nature of world cultures. It pursues comparisons and contrasts both within Islamic civilization itself—its Arab, Byzantine-Christian, Persian and Turkish contributions—and between that civilization and medieval Europe at various stages—initial confrontation and conquest, cultural and diplomatic exchange, Reconquista, Crusades. Lectures, discussion, reading. Take-home mid-term, term paper, and a final.
Honors students will have separate readings sessions with the instructor and write an extra book review or a longer research paper; if appropriate, an excursion to a museum will be organized.
HIST134.011: HISTORY OF AFRICA
Maloba Limit 50 MWF 11:15-12:05
This section satisfies the multi-cultural requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences and the History Department’s African, Asian, Latin American or Middle Eastern requirement. This is an introductory course on African history south of the Sahara, from the earliest times to 1914. The course will introduce students to the major themes in African history during this vast period. Particular emphasis will be placed on pre-Colonial African political, social, and economic institutions; diversity in African political organizations; slave trade; the coming of European colonialism in Africa; African culture in the era of European imperialism This course is cross-listed with AFRA134.

HIST135.010: INTRO TO LATIN AMERICAN HISTORY
ENROLL THROUGH SECTIONS HIST135.020D-024D
HIST135.080: HONORS SECTION
ENROLL THROUGH SECTION 135.080D
Buckley Limit 85/5 MW+ 10:10-11:00
This section satisfies the multi-cultural requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences and the History Department’s African, Asian, Latin American or Middle Eastern requirement. Introduces students to the history of Latin America, from first indigenous contact with Europeans to recent times. Topics include pre-conquest societies, Iberian colonization and colonial society, the transition to independence, nineteenth century national development, twentieth-century urban industrialization, revolutionary political movements, and the region’s changing relationship to the United States.

HIST137.010: EAST ASIAN CIVILIZATION: CHINA
Wang Limit 100 MWF 12:20-1:10
This section satisfies the multi-cultural requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences and the History Department’s African, Asian, Latin American or Middle Eastern requirement. This course introduces Chinese history by discussing the diverse political, economic, social, and cultural entities of China and their structural transformations from prehistoric times to the present. It provides students with a critical approach to examining the unique characteristics of Chinese civilization and the rich historical legacies of the Chinese nation and society that are still defining their identities within and beyond China.

HIST139.010: INTRODUCTION TO INDIAN CIVILIZATION
Rawat Limit 40 MW 3:35-4:50
This section satisfies the multi-cultural requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences and the History Department’s African, Asian, Latin American or Middle Eastern requirement. This survey course will introduce students to prominent themes that have shaped the rise of civilization in the Indian subcontinent, from c. 2500 B.C.E. to 1700 C.E. We will focus on practices and institutions that have come to historically define Indian civilization and continue to be relevant in contemporary debates in India. Topics include: the Indus valley civilization, the Aryan (Vedic) society, the development of an agrarian economy, urbanization, and social stratification, Hinduism, Buddhism, Jainism, and Indo-Islam, the Classical age, the state formation, the Indo-Islamic world, and the Mughal Empire. In addition to assigned secondary sources, several important primary sources pertaining to ancient India, and Valmiki’s /Ramayana/ will play an important role in understanding the cultural and social dynamics.
HIST152.010: AMERICAN APOCALYPSE: THE CIVIL WAR
Heyrman  Limit 100  MWF 9:05-9:55
American Apocalypse explores the causes, character, and consequences of the Civil War. We will begin by investigating the deepening estrangement of North and South in the 1830s and 1840s and the pivotal role played by slavery in that process of alienation. Our attention turns next to the decade of the 1850s and the series of crises that propelled the South toward secession in 1861. A consideration of the fighting itself—and the impact of military conflict on the Confederate and Union homefronts—will follow. We will conclude the semester by assessing the Civil War’s legacy and lessons.

HIST211.010: AMERICAN MILITARY HISTORY
Ralph  Limit 40  MWF 2:30-3:20
In charting the course of the military history of what eventually became the United States, this course will examine the European situation at the beginning of the 1600s, the military history of the English/British colonies on the Atlantic coast, the contribution of the War for Independence to the evolution of military practice, the contributions of Napoleonic warfare and the Industrial Revolution to U.S. military history, the place of the Civil War in world military history, the history of the two World Wars and the participation of the U.S. in them, the 'Cold War' conflicts, and the meaning and future of post-Soviet conflict. The textbook will be available on line, without charge.

HIST216.010: INTRO TO MATERIAL CULTURE STUDIES
De Cunzo  Limit 5  MWF 10:10-11:00
This course offers an introduction to the study of American material culture, with an emphasis on social and cultural-historical approaches and research methods. This course is cross-listed with ANTH216, and MCST216.

HIST220.010: THE CIVIL RIGHTS MOVEMENT
Gill  Limit 20  TR 11:00-12:15
This section satisfies the multi-cultural requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences. This course examines African American struggles for freedom, equality, and citizenship from the 1940s to the present. This course is cross-listed with AFRA 220.

HIST221.010: FILM & AMERICAN SOCIETY
Johanningsmeier  Limit 70  T 6:00-9:00
In this course we will be learning about the history and development of Hollywood and the movie industry as modern business and spectacle, greatly influential in American (and world) culture today. We will be viewing and discussing certain classic American films and film genres. Topics include: the Hollywood celebrity machine and the “star system;” trends in direction and design; the “studio system,” business and corporate structure; themes of gender, race and “making it in America;” the gangster films; the Cold War and American filmmaking; sex, violence, and censorship.

HIST223.010: NATURE AND HISTORY
Ott  Limit 45  TR 11:00-12:15
In this course, students will study the ways people have created nature displays dating back to cabinets of curiosity in the Renaissance and up to present day wildlife TV programs. We will analyze how people the world over have cataloged and exhibited plants and animals, including human beings, in venues such as botanical dictionaries, gardens and arboretums, private menageries, museum dioramas, TV and film, front yards, and zoos, among others. This interdisciplinary course will tie together the themes of nature, science, and popular culture. Its purpose is to have students learn about and analyze one of the central means that people encounter and engage with the natural world – as objects of display. At the end of it, students will be able to identify historic trends in human-nature encounters; they will have acquired skills in interpreting images, objects, and exhibitions; and they will be acquainted with pivotal works in the fields of environmental humanities and museum studies.

HIST241.010: HISTORY OF CHRISTIANITY TO 1300
HIST241.080: HONORS SECTION
Frassetto Limit 35/5 MWF 12:20-1:10

Both sections satisfy the History Department’s Pre-1700 requirement.
A survey of the evolution of Christianity from its origins to 1300. This course will examine the apostolic age and era of persecutions, the triumph of the church in the Roman Empire and Christianity and the barbarian kingdoms, and the church during the age of the papal monarchy and crusades.

HIST243.010: ANCIENT RELIGION & CIVILIZATION
HIST243.080: HONORS SECTION
Sidebotham Limit 40/10 TR 3:30-4:45

Both sections satisfy the History Department’s Pre-1700 requirement.
This course outlines religion in Europe and the Near East from the Paleolithic period to the rise of Islam. The course covers religious beliefs, rituals, death and burial practices of ancient man and the construction and use of religious edifices. Power point presentations illustrate all the lectures.

HIST268.010: SEMINAR: VIETNAM CONFLICTS
McLeod Limit 12 T 3:30-6:30

This course satisfies the University of Delaware’s DLE requirement.
History 268, Vietnam Conflicts, explores the events Americans call the "Vietnam War" and Vietnamese Revolutionaries call “War to Resist America and for National Salvation” in the larger context of decolonization and revolution in the Vietnamese-speaking lands of the former French Indochina. Through readings, discussion, music, images, film, and lecture, class members will become familiar with a common body of information and interpretations. Each student will then select, in consultation with the instructor, a particular theme or topic that will become the subject of a research paper that will be presented orally to the seminar as well as submitted in written form to the professor at the end of the course.

HIST268.025: SEMINAR: EUROPEAN IMPERIALISM, 1830-1930
White Limit 12 W 3:35-6:35

This course satisfies the University of Delaware’s DLE requirement.
Today’s world continues to be marked by the legacy of European empire-building in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. With the aid of a wide variety of written and visual sources, in this seminar we will address questions such as the following: Why did European nations want formal empires overseas? What systems of rule did they develop in Africa, Asia, and elsewhere, and how did colonized peoples meet the challenges posed by imperial domination? What impact did these empires have on European culture? We will pay special attention to the sources and methods that historians have used in order to write about this crucial aspect of European and world history. A research paper will be a requirement.
HIST268.026: SEMINAR: WORLD WAR I
HIST268.086: HONORS SECTION
Bernstein
Limit 9/3
M 3:35-6:35
This course will feature some opening discussions on the history and nature of historical writing followed by some discussion of 19th century European history leading up to World War I. The heart of the course, however, will be careful individual supervision of the writing of a long (18-20 page) paper on any topic connected to the war. Topics may include political, social, intellectual, or technological history, for example, not just military. Students will present their findings in short presentations near the end of the semester.

HIST268.030: SEMINAR: CREDIT, CRASHES, AND CON MEN: CAPITALISM IN EARLY 19TH-CENTURY AMERICA
Norwood
Limit 12
MW 3:35-4:50
This course satisfies the University of Delaware’s DLE requirement.
America and capitalism grew up together. This course examines this mutual development by investigating how Americans in the early 19th-century experienced booming markets, untested financial institutions, and sudden economic crises. Digging into historical monographs and a wide range of primary sources, we will address a variety of questions, including: How did money, credit, and banking work in the early republic? What models did Americans have for economic growth – and for disaster? Why, and under what circumstances, did Americans demand government intervention in the economy? In addition to shared readings and discussions, each student will select a theme or topic related to the history of capitalism in the early republic, and develop a research paper that will be presented orally in seminar as well as submitted in written form at the end of the course. This course is designed to introduce sophomore history majors to basic methods of research, reading, writing, and public speaking; no prior course work in economic history is required or assumed.

HIST302.010: THE WORLD IN OUR TIME
HIST302.080: HONORS SECTION
Alchon
Limit 22/3
TR 3:30-4:45
BOTH sections satisfy the 2nd writing requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences.
The World in Our Time explores the long twentieth century, an era of unsurpassed wonders and horror. It introduces some of the larger ideas and forces driving both modern times and the modern U.S., while emphasizing particular people who lived amidst and created their times. The course, then, examines the origins and course of Progress, Empire, and Genocide, and such things as Courage, Complicity, and Goodness. Ultimately, the course is interested in nothing less than the fate, the possibility, of Hope...

HIST303.010: SEMINAR: WOMEN IN JUDAISM
Zavadivker
Limit 10
TR 2:00-3:15
This course examines the role of women in global Jewish history, culture and religion from ancient times to the present. Sources of study include primary religious texts about women and gender in Judaism; as well as interpretations, personal accounts and historical narratives of different periods of history. Topics to be addressed will include leadership roles and sources of authority, law and custom, family life, education, transmission and reform of religious law. This course is cross-listed with JWST303 and WOMS303.
History 307 traces the development of the United States from the 1780s through the 1820s, turbulent decades which witnessed transformations in every sphere of life. The federal Constitution converted a confederation of sovereign states into a national republic as political leaders struggled to unify a diverse people, to create stable governments, and to fend off challenges from Britain, France, and Spain. The rise of political parties fostered the emergence of a more contentious and participatory civic life and intense partisan divisions. The expanding western boundaries of the new republic met with resistance among Indian nations between the Appalachians and the Mississippi and fueled hostility between the white inhabitants on the frontier and those along the Atlantic coast. Over the same decades, slavery expanded in the South, even as it slowly withered in the North. As a result, sectional divisions between North and South deepened, and an organized opposition to—and defense of—slavery began to take shape. Finally, differences over religion often erupted into controversy. While many of the founders sought a stricter separation of church and state and hoped to promote religious beliefs which prized reason over biblical revelation, evangelical Christianity steadily gathered popular support and reconfigured the ideals of womanhood, manhood, and the family among a growing white middle class.

From the “robber barons” of the Nineteenth Century to Bill Gates and Martha Stewart, this course will examine the ways in which business and business leaders have played a central role in American life. Among topics we will explore are the development of America’s consumer culture, American business abroad, the role of foreign business activities in the U.S., and how McDonalds, Disney, and the Mall came to be our ubiquitous national symbols. The course will consist of lectures, weekly discussion of core reading assignments, and the research and writing of a paper.

This course will survey the major developments in the two decades following the end of World War II. Among the topics covered will be the Cold War, the Civil Rights movement, McCarthyism, suburbia, and the changing role of women. We will also examine other significant aspects of American life during this era, including the rock & roll revolution of the 1950s and the rise of television. Requirements will include a midterm, final, one paper, and several short homework assignments.

Modern America emerged from the broken promises of Reconstruction, the creation of Jim Crow, industrialization, immigration, the reform of American politics, and the newly built American empire.
HIST314.010: THE UNITED STATES, 1914-1945
Johanningsmeier  Limit 35  TR 12:30-1:45
This course will examine American politics, society, and economy during the period encompassing World Wars I and II and the Great Depression, what the historian Eric Hobsbawm has called the “Age of Catastrophe” in world civilization. We will be discussing the profound changes Americans wrought in their society and government as they were confronted with momentous challenges to their “way of life.” Midterm, final, and research paper.

HIST315.010: U.S. HISTORY FOR TEACHERS
Kim  Limit 35  MWF 12:20-1:10
Only open to Teacher Education students (from the School of Education, the College of Arts & Sciences, or elsewhere)
The purpose of this course is to conceptualize and organize American history content in ways that improve the teaching of Social Studies at the elementary and secondary school level.

HIST315.010: CIVIC ENGAGEMENT IN AMERICA
Joyce and Trembanis  Limit 35  MWF 12:20-1:10
This course satisfies the University of Delaware’s DLE requirement.
In this course, we investigate how civic engagement has shaped American History. We analyze the similarities and differences between the ways that citizens actively participate in contemporary American society, versus how they have done so at key junctures of the past. We begin the course by collectively defining what it means to be an engaged citizen, then work together to identify core American values and attitudes essential to encouraging an engaged citizenry. Most of all, this course is all about individual and community reflection about values, attitudes and actions, and how best to pass on these ideas and ideals to the next generation. The course includes a unique service learning project-based assignment, where groups of HIST316 students work with 4th and 8th grade students to design potential community service projects.

HIST318.010: COLONIAL AMERICA
Bendler  Limit 35  MWF 9:05-9:55
Satisfies the History Department’s Pre-1700 requirement.
This course will focus on the history of the European settlements in North America. We will discuss interaction between European colonists and Native Americans, the establishment of colonies along the Atlantic coast and in the Spanish southwest, and the development of those colonies. We will examine colonization in an Atlantic context, looking at interaction between Europe, Africa, and the Americas. Finally, we will examine the development of Euro-American and Afro-American cultures.

HIST324.010: AMERICAN CONSTITUTIONAL HISTORY
Joseph  Limit 20  MWF 10:10-11:00
This course will examine the historic contests that have emerged in the United States when the values of constitutionalism, rooted in the rule of law, have clashed with the values of democracy, rooted in majority rule. We will contrast the formal expressions of constitutional principles, emanating from the U.S. Supreme Court, with the competing interpretations of presidents, legislators, civil libertarians, laborers, dissidents, religious believers, and other activists. Our discussions will emphasize three broad areas of constitutional change:
federalism, judicial review, and presidential powers. This course is cross-listed with CRJU324.

HIST325.010: AFRICAN AMERICAN HISTORY TO THE CIVIL WAR

HIST361.010: TWENTIETH CENTURY FRANCE AT WAR
HIST361.011: 2nd WRITING
White Limit 20/10 MWF 10:10-11:00

Only section 011 satisfies the 2nd writing requirement.
In this course we will focus on the three wars that made France’s twentieth century so turbulent. France ended up on the winning side in the Great War (World War One) but in the process lost 1.4 million of its citizens, leading Winston Churchill to comment that the victory was “bought so dear as to be indistinguishable from defeat.” In World War Two, a humiliating defeat to German invaders in 1940 led to four years of occupation and painful choices as to whether to collaborate, resist, or accommodate to the Nazis and their demands. The war in Africa between 1954 and 1962 was a different type of conflict, as the military and settlers of European descent struggled to maintain French rule in the face of an anti-colonial nationalist uprising by the Arab and Berber majority. We will explore these dramatic events with the aid of primary sources and film, paying special attention to the social dynamics of each conflict and also addressing the important question of how these wars have been remembered.

HIST365.010: TOPICS IN ASIAN & PACIFIC HISTORY: THE US IN ASIA & THE PACIFIC
HIST365.011: 2nd WRITING
Flaherty Limit 20/10 MWF 12:20-1:10

Both sections satisfy the History Department’s African, Asian, Latin American or Middle Eastern requirement. Only section 011 satisfies the 2nd writing requirement.
This course explores the making of U.S. presences in East Asia and the Pacific and their meaning for inhabitants of the region. The course begins with economics and international relations, starting with the early China trade, encounters with Japan, the annexation of Hawaii, the colonization of the Philippines, wars and occupations involving the entire region, nuclear weapons testing in the Marshall Islands, and intervention and war in Vietnam. The course then shifts its attention to knowledge and cultural diffusion, exploring U.S. presences in the region from the Green Revolution to tourism. Lectures and readings will provide the chronological and descriptive frame for our inquiry. During and outside of class, we will read primary sources and watch newsreels, documentaries and film that will express (or invoke) local perspectives.

HIST366.000: INDEPENDENT STUDY

HIST369.010: CHINA SINCE 1949
Wang Limit 35 MWF 9:05-9:55
This section satisfies the multi-cultural requirement for the College of Arts and Sciences and the History Department’s African, Asian, Latin American or Middle Eastern requirement. This course explores Chinese history since 1949, focusing on the People’s Republic. It discusses five key themes as follows: 1) China’s political movements and their consequences, such as the Great Leap Forward, the Great Famine, the Great Cultural Revolution, and the Tian’anmen Square Incident; 2) China’s foreign policies and the regional conflicts in which it has participated, such as the Sino-Russian alliance and split, China’s involvement in the Korean War, Sino-American rapprochement through “Ping-Pong Diplomacy,” and the ongoing overland and maritime border conflicts with its neighboring countries; 3) China’s economic reforms and developments, including Soviet-oriented industrialization, Reform and Opening-up policy, urbanization, labor migration, and the decline of traditions; 4) Chinese women and gender equality movements, one-child policy, and changes in the national educational system; and 5) China’s border reconstruction and its multiethnic challenges, in particular in Xinjiang Uighur and Tibetan regions. Students are expected to engage in in-class discussion. RESTRICTION: Not open to freshmen.

HIST374.010: A PLAYER, A VIRGIN, AND A REGICIDE: TUDOR & STUART ENGLAND
Montaño Limit 35 MWF 1:25-2:15
Satisfies the History Department’s Pre-1700 requirement. This is an introductory survey of English history from the War of the Roses to the end of the Stuart dynasty. The course will examine the relationship between social, economic, religious, intellectual, and constitutional developments as well as the transition from the medieval to the early modern period. The readings will emphasize the use of primary materials as cultural evidence, with special attention paid to the tensions between tradition and innovation in these years. A key question throughout will be the merits of focusing on continuity or change in English history.

HIST382.010: HISTORY OF WESTERN MEDICINE
HIST382.080: HONORS SECTION

Only section 011 satisfies the 2nd writing requirement. Examines the history of Brazil over five hundred years, from first indigenous contact with Europeans through independence, urban industrialization and Brazil’s current place on the global stage. The course highlights parallels between Brazil’s national history and that of other Latin American and developing countries worldwide. Comparisons to U.S. history and culture are also emphasized. Topics include colonial economics and society; gender & class dynamics; slavery, abolition and racial ideologies; poverty & social fracture; and revolutionary political movements of the twentieth century. This course is cross-listed with AFRA392.010.

HIST400.010: HIST CAPSTONE: CASTLES, CATHEDRALS, & BARNs
HIST400.080: HONORS SECTION
Duggan Limit 12/3 TR 2:00-3:15
This is a seminar on the building of castles, cathedrals, palaces, barns, and other monumental structures. In addition to participating in the discussion of a number of common readings focused principally on the medieval and Renaissance periods, each student will (1) once a month write up her or his comparative impressions of two different buildings on campus; (2) deliver an oral report on, and then write a written review of, one extra book; and (3) research, deliver an oral report on, and write a more substantial paper due at the end of the semester. This paper may be on a topic from any period in human history. There are no examinations. Intelligent participation in class discussion will constitute at least 40% of the final grade.

HIST400.011: HIST CAPSTONE: DRUGS AND STIMULANTS IN GLOBAL HISTORY
HIST400.081: HONORS SECTION
Matthee Limit 12/3 TR 3:30-4:45
This course examines the multiple and changing ways that human beings have used (and abused) psychoactive drugs and stimulants—from opium, hashish and tobacco to caffeinated beverages and alcohol—either as a lubricant of sociability, as a means to seek oblivion from hard and dreary lives, as a way to self-medicate, or as a morale booster for frightened soldiers. Beginning with the great “Maritime Discoveries” of the 15th and 16th centuries, when drugs and stimulants began to swirl around the world, we will follow patterns of commerce, of introduction, resistance, acceptance, indigenization and popularization. We will consider how drugs played a role in conquest and war, how their use has often expressed class differences, while contributing to the making of the modern world. With regard to consumption we will compare the way in which governments have often both encouraged and sought to repress drug use. The scope of the course is global but most attention will be paid to Eurasia, with a focus on Europe, the Middle East, South Asia and China.

Honors students will have separate readings sessions with the instructor and write an extra book review or a longer research paper; if appropriate, an excursion to a museum will be organized.

HIST400.012: HIST CAPSTONE: POPULAR MUSIC IN AMERICA
Suisman    Limit 12/3    MW 3:35-4:50
From ragtime to country, rock to rap, this course takes popular music as a means of exploring some of the most important issues in American political, cultural, and economic life in the twentieth century. Through a combination of readings, sound recordings, and videos we will develop a critical vocabulary for talking about race, class, gender, technology, and intellectual property. This course is not a survey of styles or genres but rather an investigation into the ways that music can inform and enhance our understanding of history.

HIST463.010: HISTORICAL ARCHAEOLOGY & THE PUBLIC

GRADUATE COURSE OFFERINGS

HIST633.010: THE UNITED STATES IN THE 20TH CENTURY
Davis
Limit 12
R 2:00-5:00
This course surveys major historical and historiographical debates in the twentieth century, focusing on newer scholarship while also attending to long-standing debates in the field. In addition to devoting ongoing attention to political and social reform movements, the class will emphasize the intersecting influences of race, class, gender, religion, and nation. Students will complete short weekly writing assignments and a final project designed in consultation with the instructor.

HIST663.010: HISTORICAL ARCHAEOLOGY & THE PUBLIC
Fraccia
Limit 2
TR 11:00-12:15
Provides practical experience through involvement in a project at an agency, research center or museum which researches, interprets, administers and preserves historical archaeological resources for the public. For students planning careers in historical archaeology, public history, university teaching, the museum field and historic preservation. This course is cross-listed with MSST663.

HIST667.010: SEM: THE ART & CRAFT OF HISTORY
Brophy
Limit 12
T 2:00-5:00
This seminar introduces first-semester graduate students to a variety of methods and questions that have shaped the field in the last decades. By sampling some of the best recent scholarship in American, European, and non-western history, the seminar assesses current “best practices” of historical research to provide a better understanding of the field’s diversity, richness, and its present challenges. Alongside weekly seminar discussions of a featured book or selected articles, students will write two short essays and a longer term paper.

HIST667.011: SEM: MATERIAL HISTORIES OF THE BODY IN EARLY AMERICA/ATLANTIC WORLD
Anishanslin
Limit 12
W 2:30-5:30
This graduate reading seminar focuses on the history of the body in early America and the early modern Atlantic World. Using the materiality of the body—and social, economic, cultural, and political constructs of it—as organizing concept, the course explores a wide range of fields and topics, including the history of fashion, the history of slavery, and the history of medicine. Throughout the course, there will be a particular focus on race, gender, and material and visual culture. Students will read a mixture of classic and recently released scholarship, and should expect to read a monograph or its equivalent in articles each week. For their final project, students will produce a historiographical review essay.
HIST667.012: SEM: THE BLACK ATLANTIC AND THE ARCHIVE
Helton Limit 6 W 12:20-3:20
This colloquium will explore Black cultural and intellectual productions through transatlantic circuits of exchange. We will engage conceptualizations of the Black Atlantic that emerge and diverge from theorist Paul Gilroy and examine the archives that inform this body of scholarship.

HIST680.010: STUDIES IN WORLD HISTORY: THE HISTORY OF CAPITALISM
Horowitz Limit 12 M 6:00-9:00
The History of Capitalism field/scholarship/movement is a development coming principally from American history over the past dozen years but located in the transnational framework that is increasingly prevalent in historical scholarship. It is simultaneously a “field”, a body of scholarship, and an intellectual movement; by straddling existing research agendas (including studies of work, business, consumption, technology, and politics) it has served as beneficial space where subfields can talk to one another. This course will commence by exploring the very notion of capitalism, and then proceed to a broad-gauge approach to how incorporating capitalism into scholarship is playing out. My objective is to equip students with a grasp of key concepts along with a toolbox of methods/approaches that could serve them well in their future scholarship. Students in the course should be prepared to read Fernand Braudel, The Wheels of Commerce, for the first class.

HIST692.010: PLANNING A COURSE OF INSTRUCTION
Joyce Limit 2 MW 8:40-9:55; F 8:00-11:00
Open only to Senior Social Studies Education majors. Requires field observation hours in school placement.
This is a methods course for teaching social studies in secondary school. It brings together subject content knowledge and pedagogical approaches in order to stimulated and assess student learning. You will learn how to create and implement daily lesson plans. You must be approved for student teaching prior to taking this course. You must also register for HIST492-LAB component. The field placement for HIST491 will take place on Fridays from 8:00am – 11:00am at your school placement.

MSST433.010/663.010: HISTORICAL ARCHAEOLOGY & THE PUBLIC
Fraccia Limit 2 TR 11:00-12:15
ELECTIVE course for MSST minor.
Provides practical experience through involvement in a project at an agency, research center or museum which researches, interprets, administers and preserves historical archaeological resources for the public. For students planning careers in historical archaeology, public history, university teaching, the museum field and historic preservation. This course is cross-listed with HIST463/663.
MSS T407.010/607.010: MUSEUM EDUCATION & INTERPRETATION
Stoehr Limit 6/6 T 6:00-9:00 pm
CORE course for MSST minor.
Anyone who enjoys visiting museums or aspires to work in one will enjoy this exploration of the joys and challenges of museum educators. After a brief overview of relevant history and theory, we will delve into the practical aspects of the field: Who visits museums and why, and how does understanding those identities and motivations help us shape meaningful interpretation of museum collections through exhibitions, programs, tours, and social media? Moreover, what can we do to better engage potential museum visitors who might currently feel they are on the periphery? The final portion of the course will focus on the nuts and bolts of the field, including methods of evaluating programs, budgeting, grant administration, and managing staff and volunteers. An undergraduate MSST407.010 section meets with a graduate MSST607.010 section.

MSS T464.000: MUSEUM STUDIES INTERNSHIP
