

The Department of History presents the

SPEAKS-WARNOCK SYMPOSIUM ON

The History of Race and Racism at the University

Tuesday, September 29, 12:30–2:30PM • Free & Open to the Public • Online

UD now joins other universities who have participated in the Universities Studying Slavery project by launching a campus-wide discussion of the legacies of slavery, segregation and racism at UD and in Delaware from 1743 to the present, as well as the unacknowledged displacement of indigenous peoples from their lands. The symposium is part of the UD Antiracism Initiative, a new multiyear collaborative project with a variety of faculty, staff, and students across the university working to grapple with and repair racism at the University of Delaware and in the state of Delaware.

Alyssa
Mt. Pleasant

University of Buffalo

Hilary
Green

University of Alabama

Rhondda
Thomas

Clemson University

Jody
Allen

The Lemon Project
at the College of William and Mary

FOR MORE INFORMATION AND TO REGISTER · history.udel.edu/symposium

The Symposium on the History of Race and Racism at the University is co-sponsored by Africana Studies, Art History, Anthropology, English, History, Languages, Literatures and Cultures, Political Science and International Relations, Sociology and Criminal Justice, Women and Gender Studies, the Center for the Study of Diversity, the Interdisciplinary Humanities Research Center, the College of Arts and Sciences, the Library, Museums, and Press, and the Provost's Office.

UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE
ARTS & SCIENCES